問 2

- (1) I have a dog. His name is Pochi. My family has him for 10 years. He is a Shiba and has been very popular around my neighborhood. Whenever I walk him, my neighbors say hi to him and he greets them back by wagging his tail. It is so cute.
(2) I think that it is one of the appropriate decisions to restrict the number of animals. Individual owners have limited time and energy to take care of their pets. The government should support groups and organizations that have been working on protecting animals, and encourage pet owners to contact these groups whenever they want to consult. (56 words)

Limiting the number of pets is not something that the government should decide. The problem is that there are so many stray animals and some owners have difficulties in deciding to open up their difficulties about their pets. I think that pet shops, animal hospitals and NPOs should work together to help pet owners.
